Representative Monsarrat arose and or and three feet deep, hearly to some fered his resignation from the printing street, and back up Cooke street for committee. He said that he had been a some distance. There are quite a number of that committee for some ber of separate ponds fed by this foul water, and many yards are affoat. The result of this all is that, as only a body met time and time again to de-cide matters that were of interest to the Territory. In view of the fact that certain things had occurred the day bemot care about discussing at that particular time and place whether employes of the Government who had served a certain period were entitled to a pension in the shape of an increase of should be incorporated in the bill. That It was left out through no fault of his, and now that the ugly charges of 'fraud' and 'erookedness' were being freely circulated, he did not feel that he was called upon to make any sacrifices in the way of defending and protecting the good name of those who had ignored him all through the regular and the extra sessions. The speaker said that there were asther reasons why he wished to resign, but which he did not care about making known at present

The House proceeded to adopt the expense bill on its third reading-with little or no comment.

A letter from James H. Boyd, Superintendent of Public Works, was read, Mr. Boyd called attention to the highly unsanitary state of the swamp in Ke-walo. He asked the House to insert
